PRODUCTS OR MACHINERY

Based on an old family business founded in 1885, Dahlman has grown to be a major supplier of all kinds of filtration systems and products. However, we have not forgotten our roots and how we reached our current position. At Dahlman we like to combine transparent business values with hi-tech solutions which can then be realised in our modern production facilities.

An important aspect of our business is our dedication in finding technical solutions and not pushing a particular product range. This gives us an unique edge in the market place because we are not tied to using any particular system or method. We are able to choose the best and most appropriate technology and then design and manufacture the most favourable solution.
